

Inside World Music

World Music CD reviews, artist profiles, concert reviews, and general articles about music from around the World.

Monday, July 26, 2010

CD Review: Daniel Cros From Barcelona

Daniel
Cros
*Las
vueltas que da la vida*
Rosazul

From the shores of Spain to Cuba, Daniel Cros' Catalan-language songs cover a variety of styles, including ballad, bolero, cha cha cha, ranchera, son, salsa, tango, and more. Hailing from Spain, Daniel infuses a Latin American-jazz sensibility with signature percussion, piano, horns, strings, and vocals. Daniel is quite the master of musical ingenuity being a singer, guitarist, and pianist. The piano surfaces more or less on many of the tracks, which provides a classic sound to the quieter rhythms and slower melodies. One thing that is certain is the passion and neverending desire for performing and creating lively musical masterpieces that stir the soul and twist the hips. Though primarily a recording for Latin music fans, Las vueltas que da la vida also evokes a Spain-ish musical component. However, the album is not very long in running-time (approx. 42 minutes), but it won't hurt to play the album over and over. A danceable collection of songs! ~

Matthew Forss

Posted by Matthew Forss at 7:51 PM

Labels: alex cuba, dance, daniel cross, jazz, Latin, rosazul, Spain

Welcome to Inside World Music

Welcome to Inside World Music! This is your one-stop spot for reviews, interviews, and resources about World Music! Inside World Music is where the sounds of the World harmonize.

Links

Paula's Reviews at Global Rhythm
Inside World Music -
Archived Site

Blog Archive

▼ 2010 (67)

▼ July (16)

CD Review: Daniel Cros
From Barcelona

CD Review: Seu Jorge
and Almaz

CD Review: Sierre
Leone's Refugee All
Stars

CD Review: Ashton
Nyte's "The Valley"

CD Review: Irka Mateo's
Taino Roots

CD Review: Janaka
Selekta

CD Review: Slovenia's
Magnifico

CD Review: Togo's
Elikeh

CD Review: Mali's Vieux
Farka Toure is LIVE!

CD Review: Bosnia's
Amira and Merima

CD Review: Bebel
Gilberto's 'All In One'

CD Review: Uganda's