Daniel Cros' music brings elements of pop, jazz and traditional Latin rhythms together into one unique style. His latest release, Las Vueltas Que Da La Vida, released by Rosazul, is a 12-song album that identifies with key moments in the Cros' career: He studied percussion in Havana and songwriting in California. Later on he met with La Vieja Trova Santiaguera and worked with Cuban musicians in Barcelona, Spain on a regular basis.

To introduce you to Cros, we are sharing with you his single, "Cuando Te Cruces En Mi Camino," off of Las Vueltas Que Da La Vida. According to Cros, "It is a very romantic song with a classic son accompaniment where the artist himself plays piano and sings, supported by congas, bongo, pailas and double bass."
